IGUANA ISLAND - Time at leisure (no tours organized)

Iguana Island is a natural attraction of the Azuero Peninsula offering the only white sand beach in the region and beautiful clear waters. Inhabited by rare birds, purple and red crabs and of course iguanas, it's considered to be a wildlife refuge. It is great for snorkeling and there is also a hiking trail that you can follow where you can see nesting birds.

COIBA NATIONAL PARK - Time at leisure (no tours organized)

Nestled off the Pacific coast of Panama, Coiba National Park boasts a rich tapestry of biodiversity within its azure waters and dense rainforest. Recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, this pristine sanctuary encompasses the largest island in Central America, Coiba Island, along with 38 smaller islands. A haven for marine life, including sharks, dolphins, and humpback whales, the park's coral reefs teem with vibrant fish species. On land, it shelters rare flora and fauna. Its remote location has helped preserve its natural splendor, offering visitors a glimpse into a pristine ecosystem largely untouched by human development.

GOLFITO - Time at leisure (no tours organized)

No tours available on SC call in Golfito on 1st of January 2025.

Golfito is Costa Rica's most southern port town. Today it acts as a gateway to visitors who wish to surf at Pavones or take part in sport-fishing. There are other activities on offer including dolphin watch and kayaking to nearby mangrove forests.

3:30	Easy	95 €	minibus, boat	participants
